LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO CLUBS. "LEAVE ALL AND POLLOW ME,"

Leave all and follow Thee! O blessed Lord, Fain would I leave the cares and toils of life, The ceaseless worry, and the endless strife— E'en the scant joys my earthly days afford.

It were a pleasant task to follow Thee Up to the heights of Heavenly calm and peace, Where pain and discontent forever cesse, And all from grief and sorrow are at free,

But, Lord, Thou once did'st say, if we would treat The narrow path, we too must bear a cross, and serve Thee well, counting all else as dross, Remembering, when sad, how Thy heart bled.

It is by doing that which we should do,
We follow along the blessed way.
'I hou bid'st us all work well while yet'tis day,
And not the smallest duty to eschew.

We cannot serve Thee well through idie days, E'en though our hearts be filled with love and praye' Labor is worship"—we must do our share, And do it faithfully, to meet Thy praise. i.cave all and follow Thee! Yea, all the sin, And all the paths which lead away from Thee; But from our labor we shall not be free Until our harvest-sheaves to Thee we bring.

And, nothing loth, I turn my eyes away

From far-off heights which know not totl or care.

Butles well dose Thou dost accept as prayer:

In Thine own massions we shall rest some day.

THE GREAT DISMALSWAMP.

A Swamp that is not a Swamp, but Almost

A Fairy Land. I know of no trip more full of excitement and varied pleasure than a visit to the Great Dismal Swamp. The strange, the beautiful, the weird and solemn in nature are all blended together. strange, the beautiful, the went solemn in nature are all blended together, forming a scenic panorama attractive and interesting to the highest degree. There is nobody who has not actually been through the "Great Dismal" has the slightest conception of what kind of a place it is. Judging from its name the popular imagination makes it s vast popular imagination makes it s vast the light of the drug, the boy fell into a narcotized state. The patient, under the influence of the narcotic, still kept up a continual spitting and barking, and clutched nervously at his throat, as though wishing more air. Several with cavalry boots drawn over his pants, at though wishing more air. Several with cavalry boots drawn over his shoulders, and on his thrown over his shoulders, and on his thrown over his shoulders, and on his thrown over his shoulders, and on his murky surface noisome vapors arise that breed disease and death. This is the popular belief, and it is a popular fallacy.

No idea can be more eroneous.

The Dismal swamp is not a vast bog sunk low in the ground, into which all the draining of the surrounding country flows; on the contrary, it is above the level of the ground some fifteen or twen ty feet, as was demonstrated by actual surveys. Instead of being a receptacle into which rivers and streams enter and flow, it is in reality an immense reservoir that in its vast sponge-like bulk, gathers the waters which fall from the heavens, and pours them into five different rivers, which flows onward to the sea. Any one would imagine that the "Dismal" was a veritable charnel-house that spreads its miasma throughout the country; or the contrary it is the healthiest place on the American continent. The swamp is formed entirely of green timber; there is absolutely no decomposed wood; one sees trees lying all around in the forests and swamps. The principal woods that grow in the place are the juniper and the cypress, which never rot. They fall prone on the ground like other trees, but instead of the wood decomposing, it turns into peat, and lies indissoluble by air and water for ages perfectly sound.

There is nothing in the swamp to create miasma; no rising of the tides and decomposition of rank vegetables; no marshes exposed to the burning rays of the sun. All is fresh and sweet, and the air is laden with as sweet odors as the fragrant woods in May, when the sweet perfume of flowers mingles with the pungent scent of the pine and dogwood. In the ante-bellum days all planters were anxious to hire their slaves to shinklemakers in the swamp on account of its health. Mr. Reddick, a well-known contractor, says he worked a gang of fifty hands for fifteen years in the Dismal, getting shingles, and in all that time there was not a single case of ague and fever. I have seen numerous affidavits of overseers and agents who have lived in the swamp their whole lifetime, and they never knew a death caused by miasma, or a solitary instance of ague and fever. The air is pure and sweet, and the water, tinged to a faint-wine hue by the juniper, is as potent a medicinal drink as is the famous watering-places of the Virginia "Mountain Spas." It is often used by naval vessels going on a long foreign cruise, on account of the healthful properties, and also because it keeps fresh and clear for years. It is a strong and invigorating tonic, with a very pleasant taste. The soil of the Great Dismal is comne son of the Great Dismal is com-posed entirely of clay and vegetable peat. It is spongy and loose. A pole thirty feet long was shoved steadily down by my guide, and did not begin to touch bottom. The swamp is alive with game and the lake with fish. The animals are bear, deer, racoons and squirrels. The fish are the black bass, or chub, as they call them here, which rise readily to the fly, speckled fish, beach fish, gars, catfish and perch. They all bite freely at bait, and make a game fight if hooked. Fishing is entirely done with rod and reel. Though the bear abound in the swamp, ti is very hard to get a shot at them. You can often hear them crashing through the cane-brakes, but rarely see them. A few months ago one big black bear deliberately passed through the village in a dog-tret. It raised the village. Old men took their single-barrels that hadn't gone off for a hundred years, and that were all the world like Rin Van and that were all the world like Rip Van Winkle's fowling-piece, and instantly snapped them off. Everybody got their arms, but Monsieur le Bruin kept on regardless, of the bird-shot that rattles against his hide, and at last, after traversing the entire town, disappeared in the woods beyond, where, no doubt, in bear told his companions of his wonderful adventure. There is no highway, or road through the swamp, only a canal runs some dis-tance up it to bring out the shingles

The man with the largest family in the United States is dead. Yesterday afternoon, at four o'clock, Brigham Young, the head of the Mormon church, breathed his last. With him, perhaps, Mormonism in this country dies too. Certainly no one that he leaves behind s likely ever to acquire the power and is likely ever to acquire the power and influence that he has exercised. He succeeded the prophet Joseph Smith in 1844, and in 1847 settled with his people in the Salt Lake valley and founded Salt Lake City. Converts in great numbers poured in from Europe, and the colony rapidly grew in wealth and importance. A state was formed in 1849 called Deseret, and a legislature was elected and a constitution framed, but elected and a constitution framed, but congress refused to recognize this govern-ment and proceeded to form the territory of Utah. Brigham Young was appointed govenor of the new territory by President Fillmore. Govenor Young soon drove the federal judges out of the Col. Steptoe, of the United States army, was appointed to succeed him, but did not deem it prudent to accept the office, so that Brigham in reality remained govenor. He declared that he would be govenor until the Lord Almighty should remove him. President Buchanan sent a force of 2,500 men to Salt Lake city and appointed Alfred Cumming govenor, and though the Mormons had made preparations for resistance, an understanding was finally arrived at which ended hestilities. The Mountain the United States authorities. He was never vanquished save by the nineteenth Mrs. Young, but he fought her long and well. A great leader is dead.—From Courier Journal Aug. 30.

Baltimore's Losses by the Strike. Attention has been called in the Gazette a number of times to the serious losses, caused by the strike on the Balti-more and Ohio road, to nearly every industry and branch of trade, wholesale and retail.

It is of course impossible to estimate with absolute accuracy the amount of loss, in dollars and cents. Inquiry by the Gazette into this question makes it certain, however, that it does not fall short of several million dollars. The railroad company itself has done no freight business, its passenger traffic has fallen off to a mere nothing, and freight of all kinds, detained at various points, has suffered more or less damage, some of it having been rendered utterly worthless. The railroad property near Mount Clare destroyed by fire was alone valued at about $50,000 and the loss by other causes has been at least $500,000. The petroleum trade has been one of the greatest sufferers. The loss to this branch of trade may be put down at $100,000, the loss to the grain trade at $100,000, the loss t It is of course impossible to estimate Meadow massacre, with the details of which all newspaper readers are familiar, is believed to have been instigated by Meadow massacre, with the details of which all newspaper readers are familiar, is believed to have been instigated by Young, and had not death removed him he would probably have been brought to trial and punishment. But the most preminent example of the kind is afforded by the recent history of the Koh-i-noor, which weighed 186 carats when it arrived in Bigland, and lost eighty by cutting in 1851. Why it was cut at all nobody seems very well able to say, and competent judges deny that its brilliancy has been increased to such an extent and to make up for the loss. Jones, who said my stills would be sent to Greensboro to be sold and desired that I should let him (Jones) keep them and replace them with four old ones, tha my stills were too valuable to be sold. This I declined to do. I did not see Col. Winstead again, and at Forsyth May Court I went to see his deputy, Col. Martin: He informed me that there had been no return of my stills at the office and that there were no papers against me and to inform Jones of the fact and direct him to turn over to me my property. I sent the message to Jones by John H. Stoltz, and Jones' reply was that my stills had been stolen from some time before that, and the reason he made no "fuss about it was, because he thought that I had got them." I then commenced to inquire around and found that he had one of them in Tesh and Bluebaker's blockade distillery, making whiskey for him, he furnishing the grain and they paying him a gallon of whisky for a bushel of corn. Bluebaker, I understand, says that the way he got the still was that he had one of his own of a different size which Jones wanted to set up in Jones & Jordan's Government Distillery, and that Jones traded him mine for that one. Two more of them were in a tobacco barn on Jones' premises, and the fourth one in Jones & Jordan's Government Distillery. After learning these facts I took out a search warrant, found the property as above described, and identified it as mine by several good witnesses. The still in the distil-lery I did not swear to because of its being in the furnace and running—this was on Monday—and left with the understanding that I would be back on the following Saturday at which time Jordan promised me that everything should be cold so that I could tear out and examine. Before Saturday came the still had been torn out by some one other than myself and secreted. So I never got to examine it at all. Though satisfied it was my still. I did not care to swear to it while it was on the furnace. I did find one of my still caps at Jordan's house, and he said that he got it at the same time that he did the still. The next day, (Tuesday,) Hodges and Jones had the officer who executed the warrant, the posse and myself all arrested under a U. S. Warrant for taking Govof our arrest, without giving us an oppor to have a single witness and in defiance of our "move for a continuance on those grounds."-Thus with indecent baste, was the mock trial

Now for a word or two about the affidavits and the character of the men who swore to them. The first man, J. D. Curry, came from Davidson to Yadkin county, as a teamster for B. F. Jones, and has been a pliable tool in his hands ever since. It was sworn in open court, nt Winston, by two as respectable men as this county can boast, that B. F. Jones' character or truth was bad. P. C. Jones is a brother of B. F. Jones, and good people here believe that he will swear or do any other bad act that B. F.

Jones prompts him to do. Harrison I know nothing about, but can prove by as respectable men as live in Yadkinville, Marler, Douglas and others, that I positively refused to give Hodges any such certificate. I is a well known and accepted fact by all good men, in this neighborhood, that every one of those men who signed those affidavits, with perhaps the exception of Hurrison, are confrer-es in guilt with James H. Hodges, and a sharer in his iniquities. Hodges, naturally is a bad man, and under the influence of Jones, as he was and is, it is only a question of capacity to what depths of crime they will not sink. If Hodges reported my stills to Col. Winstead why didn't he get Col. Winstead's certificate? That would have settled the matter, and that is what,a man honestly anxious for the truth to be known would have done, but instead, he gets the signatures of his partners in crime.

Now about the "blank." Does a carpenter, when he goes to work, forget his tools? Hodges came to this section of country for the express purpose of capturing stills, and mine were of the first taken—but of blanks that early! And besides, in the interim of four months, from the time he seized my stills until he was in Greensboro, to my certain knowledge he was in Salisbury more than once and all of this time was in tri-weekly communication with both Statesville and Greensboro. No, there is both Statesville and Greensboro. No, there is a blank place in his duty and if I were not afraid (?) I would ask what per centage of the profits Jones gave him? And, again, at the very moment that he makes a blank an excuse, he is in the Collector's office where he can get any number of them. Why didn't he fill a blank then? Deputy Collector Martin says he never did report. Collector Winstead himself, by taking no action, says he didn't, and thus itis.

This is the case hurrically and briefly told. This is the case hurrically and briefly told.-Wero I to write you all the rascality of thes men, in this case alone, you would have but little room for aught else, and were I to attempt to inform the public of all their rascali-ty, immorality and debauchery connected with their operations in the Revenue, while Hodges was disgracing the service in this community, one volume of your paper would scarcely re-cord it. I hope that these few lines will satisfy these men that at least a part of their infa-my is known and I can assure them that there is much more in process of development.

The North Carolina Indians at Home. Superintendent Mills, of the Orphan Asylum, gives the following account of a recent visit to the Cherokee Indians: Sitting in Mr. Enloc's house, at Quallatown, reading of Dr. Livingstone's travels in Africa, a loud "Schougkh!" is heard, and there stands Will West. He has come with Onolih (Black Fox) to interpret a letter from Washington.—After reading and hearing the letter in English and Cherokee, Will West is ready to go up "Soco." Now Soco is from 2,000 to 4,000 feet above the control of the second standard control of the s above the sea. Its water is clear as crysta and its valley is rich as the soil of our beautiful Mattamuskeet. This is the wild mountain home oft he Cherokees. They also follow the creek down to Oconetultih river. On this stream is the magnificent farm of Sawnuke (Flying Squirrel), the Chief. George Bushy-head lives here also, in his little cabin. He has passed for a preacher, and swindled white men out of money. But a white man opened a store with his capital, and very soon the white man had all the capital and left Bushyhead with a sad experience only. The Indians have no schools now. Mr. McCarthy started four; one on Soko, at the Methodist discharged. He now goes to Weaverville, and the Indians are left in ignorance. One man, Jim Crow, went fifteen miles to see if his boys could go to Oxford. He did not know that the school was open to orphans only. The Indians live mainly on corn, beans and potatoes. They put calico buttons on their shirts, and flowers and feathers in their hats. In the purchase of crockery they prefer the gaudy. They sing well in church, and listen to preaching with great patience. Their leading preachers are Black Fox and David Ow!. Both seem to be sober and sensible. They admire the owl for his silence and circumspection, and many take that name. A white man was preaching at Birdtown with David Owl as interpreter. He used the word "conglomerated," and Mr. Owl declared there was no such word in Cherokee, and called another man to be "linguister." The Indians are semi-civilized, semi-religious, and semi-superstitions, and semi-suspicious on account of frequent swindles.

LOST ON THE PLAINS-TERRIBLE SUFFERING. -New York, Sept. 8.—A letter from Lieut. Casper, at Fort Choncha, Texas, who was with the party of soldiers who became lost recently in the Staked Plains, in the Northwestern region, and nearly perished from thirst, recounts that when the horses gave out the men fought to drink their blood. This only intensified their thirst, and the soldiers suffered symptoms of the blind-staggers, from which the horses died. The loss on the trip was four men and one citizen died from thirst, and twenty-three horses and four mules perished. The reported fight with the Indians and massacre of the soldiers on the Staked Plains was a canard.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds,

Whooping Cough

The reputation it has attained, in consequence of the marvellous cures it has produced during the last half century, is a sufficient assurance to the public that it will continue to realize the happiest results that can be desired. In almost every ion of country there are persons, publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs, by its use. All who have tried it, acknowledge its superiority; and where its virtues are known, no one hesitates as to what medicine to employ to relieve the dis-tress and suffering peculiar to pulmonary affec-tions. CHERRY PECTORAL always affords instant relief, and performs rapid cures of the milder varieties of bronchial disorder, as well as the more formidable diseases of the lungs.

As a safeguard to children, amid the distress ing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of Childhood, it is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued and restored to health. This medicine gains friends at every trial, as the cures it is constantly producing are too re-markable to be forgotten. No family should be without it, and those who have once used it never will. Eminent Physicians throughout the country prescribe it, and Clergymen often recomme from their knowledge of its effects.

Kernersville Letter. MESSRS. EDITORS:—The Moravian Protracted Meeting at Friedland, including the first Sun-Meeting at Friedland, including the arst sun-day in September, came off as per programme. It began on Saturday evening, and the attend-ance was pretty fair; among those present was my old friend William Grabs, of Bethania.

The exercises on the Sabbath were inaugurated by a social prayer meeting, quite a number of the lay brethren participating. At 11 o'clock we had a most excellent sermon by Bishop E. A. deSchweinitz; in the afternoon another one, equally good, by Prof. M. E. Grunert, and at night Rev. E. J. Mack, who had been for thirty years a Moravian Missionary among the Cherokee Indians, also preached an excellent sermon. There was a good attendance, both during the day and at night, and the order was all that could be desired.

On Monday morning we again met in a prayer meeting, the attendance being very fair, everything considered. Rev. Mack again preached, at 11 o'clock, and there was preaching in Winston, are on the way. Report intimates the afternoon and at night, when the meeting finally closed, and we have no doubt good was done both to preachers and people, for I main-tain that preachers need something of the kind to stir them up, as well as the members.

I understand the Bishop contemplates spending the 4th Sunday in September at Mt. Bethel, in Virginia, in company with Rev. R. P. Lineback, who will hereafter take charge of that Mission in connection with Bethania.

On yesterday, 2nd Sunday in September, Elder L. I Bodenhammer preached at Saint's Delight, to an unusually large congregation. He has been spending some six weeks on a preach-ing tour in the Eastern part of the State, and says he met with good congregations every where. In fact, this is one admirable trait in our Primitive Baptist friends,-they will turn out to hear their preachers.

The other day I received a card from Col.
Marshall, living near Salem Chapel, inviting me to a Sunday School Pic Nic. Unfortunately, I received the card too late to respond to the invitation. If I am not mistaken, I had a hand in organizing the first Sunday School that ever existed in that part of the county: A request was made to the Board of the Forsyth County Sunday School, for some one to come and heip form a school, and your aged townsman, Mr. John Vogler, now in the nineties, and myself, were requested to respond to the call; and he put "Old Bawly" in his old-fashioned carriage, which he made himself, and away we went. I preached, he delivered an address, and then all hands met and organized the school, elected the officers, and took up a subscription amounting to ten dollars to buy the needful books. That was in the Spring of 1852 I think, and then, to crown it all. we came back to Col. Marshall's and partook of a dinner, the remembrance of which makes my mouth water, after the lapse of more than 20 years. By the way, we are sporting a new sign in our end of the town, "Kerner House," by our old friend, Israel Kerner. He is an old stages in the hotel business, having served a time at the Old Salem Hotel, now Butner's, when under the auspices of Judge Wilson, immediately after the death of his father, Thos. Wilson.— This was in 1844, and afterwards for many years, in the old Examination times, Israel was on hand, and now he proffers to entertain all that will call on him. When I was a boy, I lived several years in Greensboro, and one court-week a man had a fight, and not being able to pay the costs, he was committed to jail, and after remaining the grocery, and after having imbibed pretty freely, he came up street, and ever and anon would stop, pull off his hat, swing it about his head and sing out, "Hurrah for Logan." (Col. Logan was the jailor at the time.) "Gentlemen, if you have to go to jail you need nt mind it, for Logan feeds well." So we would say to all that may have occasion to come to Kernersville, you need nt mind it, just call on Mr. Kerner and his lady and they'll feed you and your horse (if you have any) well. C. L. R. Kernersville, N. C., Sept. 10th, 1877.

A Collection of Choice Becelpis. Written for the Detroit Free Press, by Mrs. J. P. Worstell.

We give some choice receipts this week. August and September offer a rich and abundant variety for preserves, pickles, jellies, jams, wines, brandies, pickles, jellies, jams, wines, brandies, catsups, etc. A little work of this kind, dispatched every day, or even on those days when the washing, ironing and bak-ing are not in the way, will accumulate a large supply of winter enjoyment, and the labor of it will not be felt, as it will if toe much is taken in hand at once. Take it easy; this preserving business is something that can not be rushed through soft, then take out the pits and pass the pulp through a sieve. Boil slowly and stir constantly for one hour. Add to this half the weight of the pulp in sugar, then boil one minute. Having ready shallow earthen plates, a square shape is to be preferred. Pour the paste in this, not over a quarter of an inch thick, and Boil plum tart in their own juice till not over a quarter of an inch thick, and dry slowly in the oven, being careful not burn it. When dry turn out and pack away carefully. This is useful to cut in rings or fancy shapes, to ornament whice ices and fancy cakes.

To preserve the plums. After weighing the fruit throw it, a little at a time, in boiling water to loosen the skin, then slip it off, and having weighed out an equal quantity of granulated sugar, pack the fruit with it in layers in the preserv-ing kettle; cover tightly, and when the whole is thoroughly heated through, and the fruit all saturated with the sugar, remove to glass jars and cover up air tight at once.

GRAPE JELLY.

Use cultivated grapes, not too ripe. It a light colored jelly is desired, take them quite green. Boil gently, till the juice is flowing, and the pulp half dissolved. Cool them, and press through a thin, strong jelly bag, which will allow most of the pulp to pass through. Weigh this and allow one pound and two ounces of sugar to each pound of fruit. Boil the juice till considerably reduced, then add the sugar (heated in an oven) and the sugar (heated in an oven) and boil fifteen minutes, when it is ready to pour into glasses.

BLACKBERRY BRANDY.

To every gallon of fruit add one of deodorized pure spirits. Mix in a large or four hours' standing. If so, pour off cask, and let the berries dissolve in the the water, and stir in sufficient flour to spirits. This is made in large quantities and sold at high prices, as a medicine for summer complaints, under the name of blackberry brandy. It is an excellent remedy.

Take wild grapes, press the juice out, boil it till reduced one-half, then to every five gallons add one quart of molasses Keep in a warm place; allow to ferment. When done hissing put in the stopper. It is a richly-flavored, fine colored vinegar for the table.

CUCUMBER CATSUP.

Blackbirds, thrushes, crows and remove the large seeds; fill a bottle half full of the pulp, discarding the juice, and add the same quantity of good vinegar; cork tightly; when used add salt and pepper; salt kills the vinegar if put in duties to perform in the economy of made. This is almost like fresh nature; and it is an undoubted fact that, sliced cucumber when opened for use. WALNUT CATSUP.

Bruise the green nuts and press out the juice, to one gallon of which add an ounce of cinnamon, half an ounce of mace, one quarter ounce of cloves. Put the whole spices in a bag and throw into the juice and boil till the liquor is half reduced, pour in a jar; add a little salt. Let it settle two days, then filter through a fine piece of muslin till clear. Bottle in pints and half pints and seal the corks. The older the better.

SIMPLE SERATE. One-third white wax, one-third spermaceti, one third pure sweet oil, the oil the same in weight as the other ingredients. Melt all together in a large mouthed bottle, set in a pan of hot water. Flavor with a few drops of rose or verbena and you have the same as the druggists sell "cold cream." Six cents' worth of last a large family a long time.

TO PACK A TRUNK. Fold each article as flat as possible. without wrinkles; more can be pressed into a trunk flat than in bundles.

TO WASH AN OILCLOTH. Use milk and water, and wipe with a dry cloth at once. It will, by this means, always look fresh and new. Never use soap on an oilcloth as it removes the gloss.

I HAVE learned that wheat can be hoed with horses as readily as corn, and as fast as it can be drilled, the implement occupying the same space and the number of hoes being the same as a drill; and when hoed it looks as much improved as a cornfield dressed out with a cultivator. It does not destroy any greater percentage of the plants than is done in cultivating corn. Any man that can manage a wheat hoe as readily. Good Seed.—Don't put in any but the best seed. This is an important item in successful farming. Good land and hard labor will not produce the best crops from poor seed. Let the best seed be planted, even if it has to be purchased; yet most farmers can generally select good seed from the best of their wheat gauged for ene bushel per acre of seed, gauged for ene bushel per acre of seed,

In growing strawberry Plants.

In growing strawberries we have had the best success in transplanting early in the season. This is the experience also of preminent growers of this fruit. Some transplant the last of July or first of August, and even earlier, if they have strong plants. Weak or immature plants should never be used, for they seldom if ever repay for time and trouble expended on them. Plants that are set out late sometimes produce good creps, but they are rendered uncertain by not becoming sufficiently fixed in the earth as to resist heaving during the changes becoming sufficiently fixed in the earth as to resist heaving during the changes of weather in the winter.—Farmers' land would give it the preference, as its

"How I Make the Bread Rise." Of course my seuthern friend's bread was a failure, when the yeast was twelve hours rising. It must have been kept too warm, and soured. The yeast was properly made; but my experience is. that a tablespoonful of meal, added to the yeast, hastens the rising. Sometimes it becomes thin and watery after three thicken as at first. The rising can be placed in a kettle of warm water, or, if you have a boiler attached to your stove, place it in the boiler and guard against too much heat or draft. It should rise within six to eight hours, then make into loaves, which must not be kept too het. Rise till perfecily light; bake in a moderate oven.—Kentucky.

We have seen it in constant use for nearly two score years, and found it to be the best remedy for looseness of the bowels ever yet devised. It is to be commended for several reasons. It is not to be mixed with liquor, and therefore will not be used as an alcoholic beverage. Its ingredients are well known among all the common people, and it will have no precommon people, and it will have no pre-judice to combat; each of the materials is in equal proportion to the others, and it may therefore be compounded without

Dr. George Jehnson, an English physician, has reported another case of poisoning by homeopathic camphor, the notes of which were furnished by Mr. Grubb, ef Warminster, England. A young gentleman, aged eighteen, wishing to cure a cold, took on sugar, in the course of six hours, seven doses of homeopathic camphor, each dose containing three drops. Within five minutes after taking the last dose, without the slightest warning, he Where constantly to be looked after and taken by the foretop. Wheat Culture.

You must have good seed, clean and pure, that has ripened fully before cuting. I use a common No. 8 sive, and plant only such grain as will not pass through it. In selecting seed the first point is to get the kind that will ripen earliest, stand the winter best, that has a stiff straw that will not fall down in strong land; secure these advantages and the yield will be satisfactory, provided ing with a poison.

Within five minutes after taking the last dose, without the slightest warning, he had an epileptic fit, which lasted more than a quarter of an hour. Since the attack he had been feeling "queer;" and at the time of Mr. Grubb's report, a month after the accident, he had not fully recovered. Cases such as the above cannet be too widely known. The use of camphor for the cure of cold is rapidly extending, and the people who use it have not the slightest idea that they are playing with a poison.

Cotton Seed, Oll and Cake.

Of twenty-five cotton seed oil mills established in the southern states, five employing a capital of $450,000 are situated in Memphis. This is an industry established within the past twenty years, as previous to 1855 cotton seed was unknown to possess any other virtue than to be used as manure. As an evidence that this important enterprise is still in its infancy it may be stated that the aggregate crop of seed produced last year exceeded 2,000,000 tons, out of which only 150,000 tons, or less than one-four-teenth of the whole was consumed by the oil mills. Of this, New Orleans, where the largest mills are stationed, consumed the largest mills are stationed, consumed 70,000 tons; Memphis, with five mills, 32,000 tons, and the remaining 50,000 tons at the two mills of Nashville, two at Helena, two at Vicksburg, one at Montgomery, Ala., one at Meridian, two in Texas, one at Yazoo City, one at Greenville, one at Nashville and one or two elsewhere. For lack of raw material our mills were run only five and a ball months of the year. Their capacity is equal to 70,000 tens, but their consumption was less than half that. They employ 300 hands, mostly unskilled laborers, whose per diem has not been reduced as in like enterprises elsewhere, but continues at $1.25, $1.50 and $1.75 per day. Skilled labor, embracing engineers, etc., are the only branch of employers who have had their salaries reduced in the cotton-seed oil business.

THE PRODUCT of our five oil mills has been 25,000 barof our five oil mills has been 25,000 barrels of oil worth from 29 to 38c per gallon. The aggregate value being $350,000. The chief market for this oil, after it is refined at New York and Providence, is in London and other points in Europe, Also 10,000 tons of cake and meal worth during the past year from $15 to $20 per ton, aggregate $180,000. This cake and meal finds a market for stock feed in Europa and various parts of New feed in Europe and various parts of New England; also a fertilizer in the production of sugar cane in Louisiana. About 500 lbs. of meal to the acre is used and 500 lbs. of meal to the acre is used and it has been found to possess more virtue than guano, bone dust or other enriching material. It has been demonstrated that the yield of sugar is increased $45 per acre, by the use of seed meal, which costs $6. Another product of the raw seed is ashes, shipped to Kentucky to be converted into pearl ash. The amount is small, the total not being over 60 tons, worth $10 per ton, but still it counts in the general result. The last named product of the seed is cotton, of which 15 lbs. is saved from each ton of seed. This is worth about 7c per lb, or about $1 per is worth about 7c per lb, or about $1 per ton. It is used to make up the coarsest goods, mixed with other cotton, such as grain bags, oakum and other rough stuff. A ton of raw seed is said to yield on an average 35 gallons of oil, worth, at 30 cents, $10 50; 700 lbs. meal and cake at 18 worth $6 30; 15 lbs. cotton worth $1 05, and a little ashes worth a few cents more, making the production of a ton of seed about $18 per ton, or an aggregate of $576,000. The raw material ranged n price last year from $9 to $11 per ton, and cost in the aggregate in round num-bers $325,000, and this amount of currency was distributed among the planters of the vicinity. About $1,500,000 was realized by the cotton growers of the south last year for seed. It their entire crop of seed had been marketed it would have yielded them $20,000,000.

MORE FACTS. The entire yield of 150,000 tens of seed sed last year will reach in value haps $3,000,000, whereas if the whol crop could be utilized—and it will be some years hence—because at present this enterprise is in its infancy, it would realize $40,000,000. During the past year our local mills have paid to agents over $6,000 also over $100,000 for freights to steamers and railroads.

The price of the raw seed has kept face with the price of the production. Last year the mills here began work with 3000 tons of raw seed on hand. At that time oil was but 29c per gallon, cake $15 per ton, and freights to the east $11,40 per ton. It was then the price of seed was low, being $7 to the planter, and $2 to $3 freight. In October seed advanced to $8; in December to $9, and later $11 per ton. The price of seed will open this year at $11, while oll is quoted at 38c per gallon, and meal at $20 per ton. The millers calculate that the wear and

The long persecuted crow has been found by actual experiment to do far more good by the vast quantity of grubs and insects he devours than the little harm he does in the few grains of corn he pulls up. Brigham's Business Capacity.

Notwithstanding Brigham Young's boast that he was a great financier, and the general belief that he successfully conducted a number of profitable business enterprises, it is a fact that every legitimate enterprise with which he connected himself was a conspicuous failure. He made vast sums of money and died immensely rich in bank and other stocks, houses, lands, etc., but his wealth was the spoils of the most gigantic and unscrupulous robberies ever perpetrated. He stole millions from the people whom he invited here; stole them outright, in the name of the Lord. He extracted them in the form of tithes, gifts, temple fund and other specious devices. For nearly a quarter of a century he managed nearly a quarter of a century he managed to keep 100,000 people in comparative penury and ignorance that he and the favorites who surrounded him might thrive. His avarice and his love of thrive. His avarice and his love of power, which survived other lusts of the flesh active in him when Joseph Smith revealed polygamy that he and brether reprobates might with impunity descrate the teds of neighboring husbands in Nauvoo, enabled him to become opulent, in spite of a business incapacity which was puerile.—New York Herald Letter.

A witness before the corpner's jury at A witness before the corpner's jury at Reading, Pa., stated that five cart-loads of stones were thrown at the Fourth Pennsylvania regiment while it was passing through the deep cut at that point. These were nearly all thrown before the first shot was fired by the troops. Five cart loads of well-aimed stones was a good deal for either human nature or raw militia return to stand and little wonder. militia nature to stand, and little wonder the men fired without orders.
